From the Editor

Greetings, Fellow Numismatists!

Welcome to the June 2023 issue of The SCanner! This issue is PACKED with informative articles and numismatic news from across South Carolina! To lead off, SCNA welcomes Walter and Joseph Ford of JP Coin and Currency of Myrtle Beach SC as the newest sponsors of The SCanner! See their advertisement on page 10, and read about their experience as they grow their coin and currency business (page 32)! We are rapidly approaching the Fall, which is a VERY busy season in South Carolina numismatics. There will be six coin shows featured around our state in September and October! Check out the Coin Show Calendar on page 57. Of course the end of October features SCNA's annual Convention and Coin Show 2023 marks the 51st edition of this event. Building on the successes of our Golden Anniversary show in 2022, SCNA is bringing more new events for your numismatic enjoyment. SCNA is sponsoring two American Numismatic Association educational seminars again this year: We will have the Fundamentals of Grading, taught by Rob Gillis (Rob is taking a break from retirement to teach us!) and new for this year is ANA's Counterfeit Detection seminar, led by Brian Silliman. The seats available for these seminars is limited, and they sold out early last year, so please make your RSVP ASAP. See the flyers on pages 67 and 68 of this issue, or visit the ANA at www.money.org to sign up. On our Super Saturday we will have two special guests and events: Mr. Tom Wood will present a seminar on Coins of the Holy Land, and Dr. Tony Chibbaro will present the inaugural SCNA Currency Quiz where prizes will be awarded for the top performers! Both events are free and open to the public, so make plans to attend. There are many more activities planned, - take a look at the special 20-page Convention section beginning on page 62.

Each year the SCNA also features an election of Officers and members of the Board of Governors. The offices of President, 1st VP and 2nd VP, as well as 3 Board Members are open for nomination. Nominations are due by August 20, 2023. Please see page 36 for more information. Also each year, the SCNA provides awards to our Numismatist of the year (Senior and Junior divisions) and Club of the year. Nomination information is available on page 37, and submissions are also due August 20th.

The SCanner would not be The SCanner without the superlative articles you've come to expect. And this issue continues that tradition! Leading off is the latest installment of my Numismatists Leam! serial. This article explores the information available on the internet via The US Currency Education Program. Frequent contributor Dr. Mark Benvenuto intrigues us with his article titled Gold, How Low Can We Go? Mr. Will Gragg, SCNA Governor, YN Director, and Webmaster has provided THREE articles for your enjoyment. In addition to his From The YN Director article, Will has provided this issue's full-color centerpiece article on Vietnam-era Military Payment Certificates, titled The Purple Lady. This article is very interesting and resulted from Will's decision to set up a numismatic display at a local gun show! Will has also been instrumental in leading recognition for Hettie Anderson, a native of Columbia SC who was the model for many famous sculptors, most notably Augustus St. Gaudens. Her visage adorns the classic $20 St. Gaudens double eagle. Read about the four events Will is leading in his article The Hettie Anderson Project. Additional detail on this subject can also be found in the Midlands Coin Club section of this issue's Member Club News.

As I said at the top of this article, this issue of The SCanner is PACKED with information. ENJOY!!

Numismatists Learn!

By Steve Kuhl

The US Currency Education Program

Regular readers of this column may recall that it was introduced in June 2021 as "Numismatists

Read", but was soon rebranded to its current title when I realized the focus of the original title was too narrow, that there are so many ways numismatists learn other than through books. Since the last two editions of this column discussed numismatic books, I felt it was time to explore an online numismatic educational resource. As a numismatic researcher I look for a broad range of reputable sources of information. I seek sites that have general information as well as sites that delve deeply into a given area. I also look for sites that may have a broad appeal, in that their sites contain material that may be useful to a wide range of numismatists. The U. S. Currency Education Program (USCEP) and its USCURRENCY.GOV website "fills the bill" here (pun intended) so please join me to meander through their site to explore both the structure and content of this educational tool.

Released in September 2015, this site is managed by the Federal Reserve Board in partnership with the U.S. Secret Service and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. It provides educational and historical information, as well as downloadable content, videos, webcasts, and images of numismatic items. It provides educational information for all levels of numismatists, and it can be accessed via your computer and your smartphone.

Website Structure: On the Home Page

you will find four drop-down menus – Denominations, Educational Materials, Media, and Life Cycle, as well as one link where you can report Counterfeit currency (should you encounter any).

The Denominations drop-down contains links to detailed information on each of the actively circulating US currency denominations. Additionally it contains three wonderful links: 1) Banknote Identifiers, 2) History, and 3) Older-Design Banknotes. As I explored this site I found that many topics and items were cross-linked when they pertained to multiple areas of interest. This was a very helpful feature of the website.

Continued

The Educational Materials drop-down contains links to Download Materials, Order Materials, and Training Resources, which has seven sub-categories of information – some general and some geared to K-5 children, while other material is appropriate for 6th – 8th grade students.

The Media tab contains the following links: Videos, Podcasts, News (this link contains dated information), Currency Image Usage, Media Requests, Web Badges, and the Multimedia Library.

The somewhat cryptically named Life Cycle tab contains some interesting information regarding the production and usage of US currency. These pages share information on: Journey to Circulation; Life Cycle Infographic; Lifespan Data; and U. S. Currency in Circulation.

Finally, the Report a Counterfeit tab is where one can do just that. Since this is serious business, the website asks a series of questions that need to be answered to validate the claim. I didn't explore far into this process because I did not have a report to make.

As I perused this website, I began to mentally reorganized the content into three different categories: Young Numismatist; Currency Verification (Design and Security Feature information which aids in identifying legitimate and non-legitimate notes); and General Education. Come and explore these areas with me!

YOUNG NUMISMATISTS: The next generation of collectors needs to be developed now, if our hobby, our businesses, and even our collections are to continue. To this end, I particularly like the site's focus on material geared towards young learners, from Kindergarteners to middle schoolers. If you know any elementary or middle school teachers, please take a moment to share this information with them. The USCEP website has learning development tools for Educators, such as Lesson Plans, Answer Keys, and a Training Course.

The media for YNs runs the gamut from old school coloring books to modern smart phone applications. Hard copy items include the illustrated book Carnival Thrills and Dollar Bills, that per the website "...introduces 1st – 3rd grade students to the unique features of Federal Reserve notes. The characters in the book journey through a nearby carnival, where they discover the similarities between the attractions and U.S. currency security features. Challenge students to find all the hidden objects in the book to strengthen their visual perceptiveness and observational skills." This book can be ordered from the CEP or it can be downloaded onto your computer and then either printed out or displayed on a computer monitor or TV screen. The book may be accessed via this web ink: https://www.uscurrency.gov/educational-materials/classrooms/carnival-thrills-and-dollar-bills

And what youngster doesn't like a little "cash"? From the uscurrency.gov website you can download and print play money and play money coloring sheets of the seven circulating denominations. Have some fun with your children or grandchildren by printing out this material and then having a coloring session, or let them cut out the play money and set up a grocery store using items from around the house!

At the time of writing, the USCEP website had ten short videos, two of which are especially geared to YNs:

You'd Be Surprised: Special Features: This innovative two-minute video compares security features on US currency to similar characteristics of some animals and insects. It was entertaining and interesting!

You'd Be Surprised: The Journey: This video compares the migration of monarch butterflies to the life cycle of U.S. currency.

Many of the other videos also contain information on the production, distribution and circulation of US currency, and they are produced in a way that appeals to a wide age range, so they are entertaining and interesting for YNs too!

BUCK

This website also contains two smartphone apps for download! The first, Money Adventure Mobile App, is geared for the Kindergarten through 5th grade age group. Per the website, this app: "...is a fun, interactive smartphone and tablet app that helps students learn about the security and design features of Federal Reserve notes." There are two main aspects of this app to enjoy. The first is a "front note explorer" that displays a virtual $20 that can be tilted and tapped to learn about the features of the note. The "back note explorer" introduces you to Buck the Time-Traveling Dog, who leads you on a fun adventure through the historical events depicted on the reverses of our currency! This application comes with a substantial amount of Educator material – Lesson Plans, Worksheets, Vocabulary, and Answer Keys. The material is broken into two groups – 1st & 2nd Graders and 3rd – 6th Graders. The second application, Cash Codebreakers: An Algebra Adventure, is directed towards 6th through 8th graders. This free, interactive math game challenges middle schoolers to solve algebra problems while learning about the security features on US notes, all within the context of escaping from the money museum! This app is played on the computer and offers three levels of difficulty. It can be played in Classroom mode or by an individual. Each level includes seven puzzles to be solved, each of which has a numismatic game, such as matching the portraits to the correct notes, followed by an algebra question. If you correctly solve the math problem then you unlock one of seven features on the US $100 bill. Once you unlock all seven features, you can escape from the museum! This game was interesting and fun, but I had to do algebra!

CURRENCY VERIFICATION: From my frame of reference, this website has a lot of good information to help identify counterfeit notes, but for the most part the focus is on authenticating legitimate bills. This makes sense – it is much easier to remember the features of genuine money than it is to try and remember different counterfeit diagnostics. I recall having a discussion with Bill Fivaz on this point many years ago when he visited my home coin club in Aiken, SC. Bill, as you may or may know published a handy shirt pocket-sized Counterfeit Detection Guide that shows the diagnostics of genuine coins, rather than characteristics associated with known counterfeits.

The website has several pages dedicated to explaining the security features and design elements associated with each of the seven circulating notes. More importantly, it has the equivalent information for earlier series of these notes. And best of all, you can download fact sheets for each of these notes to see the diagnostics in detail! Unfortunately, copying the content of the document or even electronically extracting a section of it is prevented by the file security settings, but the documents can be printed and shared.

These Fact Sheets are available:

$1: 1963 to Present

$100: 1914-1990; 1990-1996; 1996 – 2013; 2013 to Present $50: 1914-1990; 1990-1997;1997-2004; 2004 to Present $20: 1914-1990; 1990-1998; 1998-2003; 2004 to Present $10: 1914-1990; 1990-2000; 2000-2006; 2006 to Present $5: 1914-1993; 1993-2000; 2000-2008; 2008 to Present $2: 1976 to Present

In addition to the individual fact sheets, the website has booklets with historical and detailed information on each of these notes. They have also "bundled" this information into many brochures, booklets, tent cards, and posters geared towards cashiers, bank tellers, and numismatists. Having this bundled material readily available for reference or posting can be beneficial to business owners who deal with cash. Interestingly, this material can be downloaded in 24 languages. In general, all the downloadable content is available in broadly spoken languages such as Spanish and German, while only some of the content has been translated into less well-known / less broadly spoken languages, such as Romanian.

Bancnota de 5$ reproiectată a fost emisă inițial în 2008. Ba caracteristici de securitate cheie, ușor de verificat: o coloană Nigran de 5, un fir de securitate, și o cifră filigran de 5 mare.

Since this is the age of the smart phone, of course "there is an app for that!" with respect to packaging the authentication information. In this case it is the Cash Assist Mobile App available from the Google Play and the Apple App stores. According to the website, this app "is the perfect training companion for cash handlers across industries who need guidance on how to authenticate Federal Reserve notes. The app's "Denomination Detector" uses your Apple or Android's camera to identify the denomination of the bill you are authenticating......Once the denomination has been detected, the app will display the key security features that are visible on genuine currency."

This app also has a function called Tilt Check Simulator which reveals the note security features that rely on motion (such as the color-shifting ink). You interact by holding your note in one hand and the phone in the other. You select the denomination of interest and then follow the directions shown to you (such as tilt your phone, or hold it up to the ceiling) to interactively see the security feature.

I tried this out on a Series 2017 $20 note. I found that the color-shifting ink was not completely obvious when I tilted the phone as instructed. But to be honest, the color shift from gold to green might just be too subtle for me. I didn't see that much change doing the same with the actual note, so I am thinking it is my eyes more than the app. I did try this with the $100 bill on the app, and I could see the inkwell color shift to show a bell, but I could not detect a change in the color of the "100" denominator in the lower right corner. In both cases I moved on to the next feature – the watermark - by holding my phone up towards the ceiling. This worked well for both, although I did find that I could also achieve the same effect by tilting the phone while holding it in a typical configuration. The app stresses, and I reinforce, that as this app focuses on the characteristics of genuine currency, users must recognize that it does not detect counterfeit currency.

Of course there are videos on this topic too! Videos related to authenticity include the titles: How to Authenticate U.S. Currency; "The Basics" on U.S. Currency; How Can I Tell if the Redesigned $100 Note is Genuine? and What should I do if I suspect that I've received a counterfeit note? If you suspect you have encountered a counterfeit note, Sonja Danburg, (currently Deputy Associate Director in the Division of Reserve Bank Operations and Payment Systems, but at the time of video production she was the program manager for U.S. Currency Education at the Federal Reserve Board) explains in the last video listed here that you should notify the local police immediately. She further instructs that if the suspect note is in your possession, then you should write your initials in the border of the note and keep it separate from legitimate notes that you have. And although not stated, you definitely want to recall how you obtained the note, to aid the authorities in tracing the origins of the note.

GENERAL EDUCATION

Regarding general education topics on this website, there is a lot of variety to look through. First up is the timeline of key numismatic events throughout US history. To view these interesting milestones, navigate to the History link under the Denominations tab. This will take you to The History of U.S. Currency.

This material is arranged chronologically, but is also extensively cross-referenced. The viewer can select a given century in US history, or they can select from the topical areas shown to the left. These pages are filled with wonderful examples of key US notes, intermixed with videos and facts, such as: the US officially adopted the dollar sign in 1785, and this symbol evolved from the Spanish American symbol for pesos, as shown in the above illustration.

As previously mentioned, the Media tab contains links to Videos, Podcasts, News, Currency Image Usage, Media Requests, Web Badges, and the Multimedia Library. General education information with in these web pages includes the following four videos: How Does U.S. Currency Get Into Circulation?; Does the Fed Print Money? How does the Federal Reserve Board determine how much money to order? Recent Changes in the Production of Federal Reserve notes. This last video explains how the US Bureau of Engraving and Printing is transitioning from printing $1 bills on 32-note sheets to 50-note sheets. One can tell which sheet type a given $1 bill has been printed on by looking at the note position identifier in the upper left corner of the note. The identifier contains a combination of a letter and a number. If the letter is larger than the number, then the note was printed on a 32-note sheet.

If the letter and number are the same size, then a 50-note sheet was printed.

The website has the following eclectic collection of podcasts:

- Green Money discusses ways money is recycled;
- Symbols in the Seal explores the symbolism on the back of the $1 note;
- Camera Ready Currency explains the rules for how and when you can use images of U.S. currency (more on this later);
- Banknote Bonanza explores the history of paper money in the US;
- The Magic Behind the ATM describes the US monetary life cycle;
- Bank on Benjamin explores the many connections the American Statesman Benjamin Franklin had with currency;
- Once More, with Feeling discusses why US money is rough to the touch;
- Much Ado About the Two addresses the frequency of printing the $2 note and why it is not often encountered in circulation.

One very important link on the Media section addresses Federal law related to the permissible color illustrations of U.S. currency, as well as crimes related to our currency. Federal law (18 U.S.C. \S 504(1) and 31 CFR \S 411.1) permit color illustrations of U.S. currency only under the following conditions:

- The illustration is of a size less than three-fourths or more than one and one-half, in linear dimension, of each part of the item illustrated;
- The illustration is one-sided;
- All negatives, plates, positives, digitized storage medium, graphic files, magnetic medium, optical storage devices and any other thing used in the making of the illustration that contain an image of the illustration or any part thereof are destroyed and/or deleted or erased after their final use.

The following crimes (and associated penalties) are discussed on this site:

- Creating Currency-Like Items and Attaching Notices to U.S. Currency
- Defacing U.S. Currency
- Creating Counterfeit U.S. Currency
- Passing Counterfeit U.S. Currency
- Creating Fictitious Instruments Resembling U.S. Currency

One of my favorite parts of this website is the multimedia page, which has downloads available for the images portrayed across the website, including historical US currency (such as the famous "watermelon" note shown at top of preceding page), seals of Federal organizations, and photos of famous individuals such as Secretary of the Treasury Salmon P. Chase (shown previous page). The remaining sections of the Media page involve requesting information from the CEP and use of logos.

The final section to be discussed is the Lifecycle information. The Journey to Circulation page explains the four steps leading to notes entering circulation- design, order, production, and issuance – and the coordination of Federal agencies during this process. The Lifecycle Infographic covers this information in a different manner, plus it contains more material, such as stating that 70% of the notes ordered each year are to replace damaged / unusable notes that are being removed from circulation. Another interesting set of data was found on the Lifespan page— how long (on average) each denomination remains in circulation. As one would suspect, the smaller the denomination, the shorter the typical lifespan.

Research for this article was completed in August of 2022, but due to space limitations the article was not included in the October 2022 edition of The SCanner as planned. Intriguingly, while refreshing this article for inclusion to this issue, it was noticed that the estimated lifespans had changed in four months, some of them significantly, such as the estimated lifespan of the $100 bill, which has been reduced by almost 8 years or 34%.

U.S. Currency in Circulation is the last tab in this section, It provides statistics, by de-

Typical Lifespans of US Currency
Denomination	Estimated Lifespan [Years]		Lifespan Change
	August 2022	January 2023	[Years]	[Percentage]
$1	6.6	5.8	-0.8	-12%
$5	4.7	5.5	0.8	17%
$10	5.3	4.5	-0.8	-15%
$20	7.8	7.9	0.1	1%
$50	12.2	8.5	-3.7	-30%
$100	22.9	15	-7.9	-34%

nomination, on the value (in billions of dollars) and the volume (in billions of notes) of currency that was in circulation from 1997 through 2020. Interestingly, the value increased nearly 450% during this period, from $458 billion in 1997 to 2.041 trillion in 2020. Similarly, the number of notes in circulation has risen 270 percent, from 18.6 billion notes in 1997 to 50.3 billion in 2020.

This website is an excellent primer and refresher on US currency. The content is engaging, interactive, informative, and fun! Perhaps the biggest benefit it provides is that the extensive materials presented can be used to develop a YN program or to help your YNs learn while having fun! I hope that each reader finds at least one youngster and one educator with which to share this information. Enjoy perusing this

Editor's note: The site was found to be a bit "glitchy" – pages were slow to load, sometimes they would not load the first time, so I'd have to wait for a few moments or else hit the "reload" button. In some instances the video did not have volume. These minor annoyances should be overlooked, given the quality and extent of the content. Be patient and you will be rewarded.

Camden Coin Club

The Camden Coin Club is proceeding

with our plans to make the 2023 Fall Coin Show a two-day event! It takes place on September 15 & 16, 2023, with dealer setup on the evening of September 14. The show will be at our new location, Camden City Arena located at 420 Broad Street, Camden SC 29020 (Broad St. is Hwy 521). To get to our new location take Exit 98 off I-20 and go toward Camden. The arena is about a mile on your right after you pass Camden's Historic Revolutionary War Park. We now have more space for dealers and will have security for the full two days!

Make your plans to visit our show and check out our new location. Why not bring the family and let them check out the Revolutionary War Park or maybe the antique shops downtown? While you are enjoying our expanded Bourse area filling out your want list. Afterwards take the family to lunch or dinner in one of the many downtown restaurants. Make your trip one that the whole family will enjoy, come to Camden and enjoy a full day of fun for you and the family.

The Club is working hard to create a great atmosphere for our dealers. We have been discussing several new ideas for the show. We now have plenty of room for more tables and exhibits. If you are a dealer please contact us at pascalbrock@gmail.com or camdencoinclub@gmail.com for table information.

Also, check out our website CamdenCoinClub.com for information about our Club and the show location or at www.sc-na.org. The Club is now meeting only once per month on the fourth Tuesday of the month. We meet in downtown Camden at Bill Blake's Coin Show, The Mercantile at 1110 A Broad Street, Camden, SC 29020

For more information about the Camden Coin Club email us at camdencoinclub@gmail.com or call 803-438-2866 or better yet, join us for a meeting! The CCC holds in-person twice monthly meetings on the 2nd and 4th Tuesday of each month.

This club is hopping! We are seeing some of the best turnouts at our club meetings and a very high membership rate as well. I think it is safe to say coin collecting is making a comeback in Columbia SC. The club auctions are doing very well too.

Our last few programs have consisted of presentations of the Brasher Doubloon restrike issues created by Ron Landis and Courtesy Autograph notes and also included a famous Tony Chibarro currency quiz. We encourage our members to present a program and also welcome outsiders to speak to the club as well.

Our Spring Coin Club show was the first time the club has offered a two-day show. The venue was the same as our last one-day show, The Embassy Suites by Hilton, 200 Stoneridge Drive (off Greystone Blvd) near downtown Columbia. We hosted 32 dealers and 64 tables full of goodies for everyone. The club also hosted a "Show Only" raffle that gives someone the opportunity to own some GOLD. This year we gave away a 1912 Dutch 5 Gulden gold coin worth about $225. Tickets are only sold during show hours and the winner is drawn right before we close the show on Saturday. Connie Nix was our winner. We also offered hourly door prizes that included proof and mint sets and silver! We had good foot traffic and estimated 350+ visited our show over two days. The success for this show falls squarely on our volunteers, cannot say enough good things about the number of volunteers we had this year! Dealers reported brisk sales and are eager to return next time. We have found a new date for our Fall Show and that will be September 8-9, 2023 at the same location, The Embassy Suites by Hilton. Look for our flyer in this issue of the SCanner. This Fall we will raffle off a $20 St. Gauden's certified gold coin as well as our show only raffle of a French 10 Franc Gold "Rooster" coin for all of our Gamecock fans!

We also received a great donation from Danny Freeman, VP of the NC Numismatic Association and ANA member. Big shout out to Danny for supporting our club.

On April 25th, many club members attended the Hettie Anderson Historical Marker dedication on the corner of Wayne Street and Taylor Street in downtown Columbia at 12:00 noon (see article in this issue). There were many people in attendance with speeches from Mayor Daniel Rickenmann and Richland County Council member and mayor protem, Edward McDowell. The event was covered on the local news and the club was able to present the mayor with a Hettie Anderson medal which surprisingly he could stop admiring. Pictures of the event found here: https://www.willsphotoartistry.com/Hettie-Anderson-Historical-Marker-Dedication/ [willsphotoartistry.com]

The Midlands Coin Club will also participate in the Hettie Anderson Lecture scheduled on June 29th at 6:00 PM at the main branch of the Richland County Library on 1431 Assembly Street, Columbia, SC 29201 (see Flyer in this issue of The SCanner). Right now there are two scheduled speakers. Karen Strickland, genealogist and researcher and MCC President and SCNA board member Will Gragg. Karen will cover Hettie's life in general and Will will cover her contribution to numismatics. The Midlands Club sold raffle tickets for a 1999 ¼ oz. Gold coin to help raise money for the grave marker. We will be drawing the winner at this event. For those who attend the event, they have a chance at a custom Hettie Anderson Medal at the end of the program. One per person while supplies last. These were funded and created by the SCNA and Midlands Coin Club.

The club will help volunteer at the SC Homeschool Expo again this year to promote Numismatics on June 24th at the Jamil Shrine Temple. We welcome any other club volunteers to promote their club and help promote Numismatics as well. It's always fun to watch kids walk away with coins.

We always invite you to join our monthly meeting, program and auction! We meet every 2nd Thursday of the month at Columbia International University (William Jones Bldg), 7435 Monticello Road, Columbia for our monthly . SCNA NEWS!

SCNA In The News!

Mr. Danny Freeman contacted SCNA President Randy Clark recently and told Randy that he was reading Numismatic News and came across a large article written by Mr. Cliff Mishler about his experiences at our 50th Anniversary Convention in October 2023. The Article is in the May 23, 2023 edition of Numismatic News.

Road-Trippin' to SCNA's 50th Convention

annual South Carolina Numismatic Association (SCNA) conventions hosted in Greenville were for many years, back in the 80s and 90s, a Halloween weekend event that was pretty much a regular travel calendar stop for me. My recollection is that my first SCNA attendance was in Charleston at the Gaillard Auditorium in 1979. I also attended at least two that were hosted in Columbia back in the 1980s. I've attended innumerable renewals in Greenville since the event began anchoring there in 1986, although this year's was the first in perhaps the last 15 years or so.

Given that the 25th anniversary event in 1997 was among those attended, I determined early on that this year's travel calendar would include attendance at the organization's 50th anniversary event. While I'd flown many years, more often than not during the '90s my travels were

The SCNA, Midlands Coin Club, and the Gilbert Coin and Collectible Exchange were all discussed in detail in the June 2023 edition of Lexington Life Magazine! The article, titled Heads or Tails, Coin Collecting was written by Warren McInnus.

Honesty and Integrity with Every Transaction

From The YN Director

By Will Gragg

This is a very confusing time right now for kids with all of the crazy social issues, the economy, two working parents, school and much more. There are untold pressures on children today that we never had growing up. I think hobbies are a great way to keep kids busy and grounded in something real, educational and fundamental. I am encouraged to see more and more youth at coin shows and in club meetings. Parents are interested in silver & gold due to the unstable dollar or possibly getting back into a hobby they knew as a child and they are toting their young ones with them. Kudos!

So as the YN director, I am tasked with finding ways to introduce this hobby too our youth. My next project is to participate in the South Carolina Homeschool Expo again this year. Last year went very well and our booth was busier than most. It helps when I give away free stuff like coins! The Expo not only got a few new members into the local area Midlands Coin Club but introduced parents into a new way of teaching. One of the games I had was a foreign coin/currency game. They were able to choose a coin or note they liked. If they could show me on the world map where that country was, I let them keep the coin or note. Obviously teaching them geography. But I often asked them to identify who or what was on the note and the importance. In the case of Indian notes, Ghandhi is depicted and surprisingly enough most kids knew who he was.

I explained to the parents the importance of teaching the history of money so these students can learn about finances and our system of money. I find that a lot of parents aren't so up to date themselves and manage to get a short lesson from me. Either way, this is a win for education and numismatics in my mind. If you can, join us at The Jamil temple in Columbia SC on June 24th for this event. Maybe volunteer at the booth and become a numismatic educator yourself.

In other good news, SCNA youth member Joshua Black was awarded the Austin M. Sheheen Jr. YN Scholarship and will be heading to the ANA Summer Seminar in June and July. I was told he was fortunate enough to also pick up an ANA scholarship and a GNA (Georgia Numismatic Association) as well. The SCNA will pay for one week's worth of study and one breakout session too. We are proud of Joshua and his commitment to Numismatics and await a report about his experience when he returns.

Please help spread the flyer included in this issue of the SCanner. It can also be found on our social media sites, or you can request additional information from me at scna_webmaster@yahoo.com. I can always use at least two volunteers for this program from 10 until about 12:30 on Saturday October 28th at the Convention.

I have begun promoting our BSA Scouting Coin Collecting Merit Badge Clinic now. I want to get a larger class this year. Last year we had less than 12 but those scouts got a special lesson from Doug Mudd of the ANA concerning the 1913 V Nickel we had on display. I certainly can't offer that opportunity this year, but we will see what special thing I can work up.

This year at the convention we will operate the Kids Carnival on Saturday only. This is due to the number of kids that have come in on Friday. Last year it was less than 4. I will have it set up by Friday, but not manned by volunteers until Saturday. I will be hanging around in the event we get a few on Friday. Should be a big show again this year and I hope the 3 day change helps.

See everyone at the convention!

The Purple Lady

By Will Gragg

In the never-ending quest to promote Numismatics, I find myself venturing off the normal beaten path. I have participated in a Home School Expo, Boy Scout events, Bottle Shows and Stamp Shows and now I can add Gun Show. People that collect items for fun I have found most often cross-collect. This means they collect more than one type of item, sometimes stamps and coins, antiques and bottle, native American artifacts and fossils, guns and knives, the list goes on. I collect multiple items as well and when visiting these shows, I often see a smattering of numismatic material for sale on their tables as well. Because of this, I have decided to reach out to attract new people to coin collecting. Call it a sickness, if you must.

I stepped out of my coin collecting comfort zone and agreed to exhibit at a gun show. The first challenge was how I could tie guns, knives and militaria to Numismatics. It didn't take long to remember I had presented a program to a small crowd at The Confederate Relic Room and Military Museum in Columbia a few years back. They were working on a Vietnam exhibit and I presented a program on Military Payment Certificates (MPCs) issued during the Vietnam War. Gun shows typically have many collectors of militaria so I felt I could exhibit these items. As you can imagine, I am a small fish in a BIG pond here. I was up against WWII displays, rare rifle and handgun displays and a huge exhibit of military vehicles minus the tank! It was fun nonetheless and my exhibit did garner some attention. I was aware that I needed to be with my exhibit the entire show as they did not guarantee security. I was not prepared for the interested and interesting people I met, but I was very pleased that I had chosen to attend.

My exhibit focused on only the four issues of MPCs printed and released for our servicemen during the conflict in Vietnam. What is MPC? They were a form of currency used to pay U.S. military personnel stationed in certain foreign countries. From 1946 until 1973 they were used in one area of the world or another, from a few months after the end of World War II until a few months after the end of the U.S. participation in the Vietnam War. Fifteen series of MPCs were created over this period, but only 13 series were issued. The remaining two were mostly destroyed, although some examples remain. Among the 13 series that were released, a total of 94 distinct notes are recognized. As can be seen on the following chart compiled by Fred Schwan in the fourth edition of his book The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates (published in 2002) four series were used in Vietnam:641, 661, 681 and 692.

MPCs were printed in dollar units. MPCs produced from 1946 to 1965 included the 5ϕ , 10ϕ , 25ϕ , 50ϕ , $1, $5, and $10 denominations. From 1966 on, MPC series included a $20 note as well. The larger denominations were need due to inflation. MPCs were printed using a technique called lithography, which was invented in 1796. This technique takes advantage of the properties of oil and water on a chemically treated plate, so that it only accepts ink where it is wanted. Lithography produces images with beautiful vibrant colors, and is a more efficient and less expensive printing technique.

At the gun show, almost EVERY veteran that walked near my exhibit stopped and looked at the display. I would give them a minute or two to look over the items, and then I would ask "So which ones do you remember using?". Typically, they only used MPCs from one series. Rarely, certificates from two of the four had been used, either because the Veteran had served multiple tours or their tour began under one series and overlapped the issuance of another series. Some of the younger veterans who stopped by had never seen these before. I had many conversations and was unexpectedly busy! As they browsed my display, I explained what MPCs were, and how, where and why they were used.

Of course the Vietnam veterans that stopped by knew exactly what the MPCs were. I was regaled with stories of trading these with locals for cigarettes and other goods, trading these for local currency and trying to trade back for greenbacks (US Notes) for a profit. And I heard many stories of when these MPCs were discontinued as a medium of exchange and became "worthless".

The first series of MPCs issued during the Vietnam War was numbered 641. Unlike the other three Vietnam-era series, 641 was used exclusively in Vietnam, it was not issued to service personnel in other countries. Approximately 130 million individual notes, with a combined face value of $283M, were issued via this series between August 31, 1965 and October 21, 1968.

MPC Issues for Vietnam — Series 641

Military payment certificates for the series 641 were the first notes used in Vietnam; that is also the only country in which these were used. They were originally issued on August 31st, 1965. They were redeemed on October 21st, 1968. In total, a little over 283 million in face value was printed for series 641 MPCs. Lots of Vietnam veterans came home with these.

This series of MPCs is important to my story for two reasons. First, they are quite beautiful and this series is what started my collecting MPCs. Secondly, at this gun show I was approached by two brothers who told me stories about their recently-passed father. He served in Vietnam and told them many stories of the horror of battle as well as the camaraderie of his brothers in arms. These gentlemen also stated that their dad had memory issues and they felt most of his stories were embellished half-truths made to sensationalize his time in the war. They told me about one "crazy" story they never understood, "Purple

Lady night" in one of the local towns that was friendly to GIs during that time. Of course to them, the purple lady sounded more like some weird outer space fantasy straight out of Star Trek. They told me he stated they could go into town and trade a purple lady for a beer. He and his buddies would get crazy drunk and all they needed was some purple ladies. It sounded crazy to them, until they saw my display.

I told them maybe he was talking about a series 641 5 cent note which was a VERY purple colored note. I saw the expression on their faces change quickly. It all makes sense now. As I explained MPCs to the brothers, they gained knowledge and insight. The seems to get excited s their began piecing together stories of what their dad told them. I think now they understand that while he was much older, he wasn't crazy. His stories were very true.

Now this being a gun show, there wasn't a lot of MPC around or for sale. These gentlemen asked where they could get a "purple Lady" to display with their dad's things. They could use this note to pass on their dad's stories to their children. I told them that while they are not necessarily expensive, sometimes they might be hard to locate. I suggested they check local coin shops, eBay, etc. Then it dawned on me! I had brought my full collection of MPCs, which contains all the issued series, in the event anyone asked about other non-Vietnam era issues. I knew that I had some extra notes, so maybe I had a Purple Lady? When I looked, lo and behold, I had one extra series 641 5 cent note. It was maybe a VF grade, but it had great color and body. I took it out and handed it to them. These two grown men were downright giddy. They offered to pay for the note, but I told them their story was payment enough and to me that was worth the exchange. They left happy and I was gifted with another numismatic story to share, as well as a new fond memory!

The next series to view is 661, issued from mid-October 1968 to mid-August 1969. Approximately 124 million individual notes, with a combined face value of $289M was put in circulation during this period.

For the first time in the history of MPCs, a $20 denomination was released, most likely due to sustained heightened inflation. Economic history reminds us that 1965 was the start of a period of high inflation in the United States, often referred to as "The Great Inflation" Per the federalreservehistory.org website, "The Great Inflation was the defining macroeconomic period of the second half of the twentieth century. Lasting from 1965 to 1982, it led economists to rethink the policies of the Fed and other central banks."

According to the historycentral.com website "Beginning in 1965, however, the general price level began to rise at an increasing rate. The CPI rose 23.07% from 1965 to 1970, with an annual percent increase of about 4.25%......The major disruption to the delicate balance achieved in the first half of the decade was the war in Vietnam......The Defense Department estimated U.S. expenditures in support of obligations in Southeast Asia as $103 million in 1965, $5.8 billion in 1966, $20.1 billion in 1967, $26.5 billion in 1968, and $28.8 billion in 1969."²

Interestingly, MPCs evolved from Allied Military Currency as a response to the large amounts of US Dollars circulated by American servicemen in post-World War II Europe. The local citizens might not trust local government currencies, as the future of their governments was unclear. Preferring a stable currency like U.S. dollars, local civilians often accepted payment in dollars for less than the accepted conversion rates. Dollars became more favorable to hold, inflating the local currencies and thwarting plans to stabilize local economies. Contributing to this problem was the fact that troops were being paid in dollars, which they could convert in unlimited amounts to the local currency with merchants at the floating (black market) conversion rate, which was much more favorable to the GIs than the government's official fixed conversion rate. From this conversion rate imbalance a black market developed where the servicemen could profit from the more favorable exchange rate. MPCs were an attempt to thwart the black market monetary exchange and to both reduce inflationary pressure and stabilize the local European currencies in the immediate aftermath of World War Two

The third series issued, 681, is popular among MPC collectors who served in Vietnam. Issued from August 1969 to early-October 1970. Approximately 80 million individual notes, with a combined face value of $214M was issued. These notes depicts military personnel and armaments, such as planes, submarines, a M48A4 "Patton" tank (my Continued personal favorite) and even an astronaut on a spacewalk high above the earth—cutting edge technology at the time these notes were issued.

MPCs were used as the official medium of exchange for all financial transactions on overseas military bases.
MPCs could be used to make on-base purchases, and under certain very limited conditions could be converted to U.S. currency. MPCs could also be exchanged for currency used in the local community, however, local currency could not be converted back into MPCs nor could the local populace use MPCs. When a new MPC series was introduced, only authorized users could convert their MPCs to the new series, and after conversion the old series became worthless.

The fourth and final series to be issued for use in the Vietnam era was 692. This run of notes matched the quantities printed in Series 681, by denomination and face value (80.4 million notes worth ~$214M).

Note that three additional series were created but not used: 691 and 701 were actually printed, but they were not issued into circulation; Series 721 was designed, but was not printed.

If one looks over these four series, one may notice an interesting transition in style and motifs. Series 641 has classic stylized (almost allegorical) images of unidentified females. Perhaps a faint "nod" to "Lady Liberty"? Series 661 is a mixture of stylized and realistic (yet unidentified) females. Series 681 shows factual images representing United States' technological and military achievements and capabilities. Series 692 contains a conglomeration of images: classical Greco-Romanesque; images of demur "Hollywood Starlets" types; iconic American wildlife – Bison, Eagles, and Elk. Series 692 contains two of the most popular MPC notes ever issued: The $10 note and the $1 note with its beautiful colors and a buffalo on the reverse.

One especially notable distinction associated with this series of MPCs is that it features two actual Native American Chiefs. The $10 MPC features an image of Chief Hollow Horn Bear of the Lakota tribe. Chief Hollow Horn Bear, who fought at the Battle of Little Big Horn, was also featured on the 1923 14 Cents US postage stamp.

The $20 Series 692 MPC shows an image of Native American Chief Ouray, of the Ute tribe that was located in western Colorado. Ouray spoke multiple languages and was a negotiator with the US Government on Indian affairs and rights. He met with multiple US Presidents, including Lincoln, Grant, and Hayes.

Chief Hollow Horn Bear, 1905 (1850 – 1913)

Chief of the Brulé Lakota Sioux

I hope you have enjoyed this experience as much as I did. Maybe you will look into collecting MPC as I did many years ago for the history, stories and beautiful colors. I may have to set up at gun shows more often just for the cool stories that follow these notes. If only these notes could talk!

Editor's Note: While performing review and verification of this article, an inconsistency in attribution of the Native American Chief featured on the iconic 1899 $5 Silver Certificate was noted. Common consensus is that the image depicts Chief Running Antelope of the Oncpapa (sometimes spelled as Hunkpapa) tribe of Lakota Sioux. However, at least two sources were discovered which attribute the 1899 $5 silver certificate as an image of Chief Hollow Horn Bear. One source was Wikipedia, which states "Some sources record him as the basis for the image on the 1899 US five-dollar silver certificate and other depictions of Native Americans."3 Taking Wikipedia with a grain of salt, the other source discovered was the Smithsonian National Postal Museum.4 It's interesting the small details one runs across when researching. Does this case refute the consensus? Probably not, but it is interesting that even today there are varying opinion as to whose likeness is on this note! SK.

Gold, How Low Can We Go?

By Mark Benvenuto

Few hobbies and pastimes have a lure in them as strong as gold is to the numismatic collecting community. Gold has been the king of the coinage metals for millennia, has fueled exploration to distant parts of the world, and has spawned rushes throughout the years, often to some pretty inhospitable locales. It and copper are the only two elemental metals that have a color other than silver; and gold has always been the more valuable of the two. With all this as a backdrop, it might seem that collecting gold is out of our reach. Let's see if we can prove that wrong.

The United States 1/10th ounce gold Eagle

We'll start with a coin that has grown from a neat little phenomenon back in the 1980's to a collectible series today. When the United States Mint got into the gold bullion coin game, there were already other players pounding out one-ounce pieces, and sometimes smaller ones. But when our Mint did get going, it did so in a big way, producing 1-ounce, as well as ½-ounce, ½th ounce, and the tiny 1/10th ounce pieces in large numbers. Even today the 1/10th ounce pieces from the late 1980's do not cost any more than those made in the past few years.

Collecting the 1/10th ounce gold Eagles will always cost a bit, meaning that if gold runs at $1,800 per ounce, the amount of gold in each will have a value of $180. We'll have to pay a bit more than that, since every seller needs to make some profit on their sales. To quote a dealer friend: "They're not sausages; I can't eat them if I don't sell them." We should probably expect to pay at least 120% of the bullion value.

Another aspect of collecting these small gold pieces is whether or not we are going to worry about the grade. Since none of the gold bullion coins were ever made to circulate, even the pieces that are regular issue – meaning they are not proofs or some other special finish – will probably still be in excellent shape. It's up to each of us to decide whether or not we want to insist on high, mint state grades, such as MS-69, or if we are simply willing to purchase whatever raw coin looks the best.

The Canadian 1-gram Maple Leaf:

If the 1/10th ounce gold Eagles seem too costly, there is another option for gold bullion coins that will be less expensive, but that will give us less gold per purchase. We're talking now about the tiny, 1-gram (0.032 Troz) gold Maple Leaf pieces of Canada. The entire gold Maple Leaf program from the Royal Canadian Mint goes back farther than just about every gold bullion coin program except the South African Krugerrands. But when it was first unveiled, the Canadian program had a heavy emphasis on the one-ounce gold pieces. Of course, the average price of gold in the 1980's was about $400 per troy ounce. To quote someone, "Ah, those were the days!" The idea of a tiny, one-gram gold bullion coin, a piece with a face value of $0.50, came much later – when the price of gold was more than four times the just-mentioned number.

Precisely because the gold one-gram Maple Leaf coins have less history than most other gold bullion coins, a full date run of them ought to be pretty easy to assemble. And because they are so small, the price tags shouldn't be too hard on the wallet either. A search through the eternally open swap fest that is eBay reveals prices of about $55 – $90 for one of these tiny beauties. Since these are e-auction bids though, the prices may go up as an individual auction comes to its close. Still, this is a pretty affordable way to start collecting some gold.

A classic - the Peruvian 1/5th Libra

If both the United States 1/10th ounce Eagle and the one-gram Canadian Maple Leaf seem a bit too modern for our collecting tastes, there is one more piece we might want to look at, one with some history to it. Arguably one of the most forgotten or overlooked series of gold pieces in world coinage is the Libra coins of Peru, which were minted in three denominations. The smallest of these is the 1/5th Libra, which weighs in at 1.5976g of 91.7% pure Gold basically, 22 carat gold). In turn, this means that the precious metal. The official dates of issue for this series of little gold pieces is 1905 – 1930. But this is one of those coins that was issued for years after, simply using an earlier date.

More small gold?

Are there other small gold pieces, either modern or classical, that can be collected by those of us who want some of the yellow metal, but don't wish to re-mortgage the house when buying it? Certainly! There are plenty of other modern gold bullion offerings from various nations that are down at the 1/10th ounce level. There are even a few classic series, like the British ½ sovereign pieces, that don't cost all that much more than the melt value of the gold in them. In short, if the idea is stuck in our heads that gold is too expensive, let's shake it off and look around. There are some good values in small gold.

Editor's Note: In recent years several nations, such as Cook Islands, Palau, Samoa, and even Somalia, have been issuing ½ gram .9999 fine (0.016 Tr oz) gold coins..

Letter from the SCNA Bourse Chair

Dear Fellow Numismatists and Numismatic Dealers:

You are cordially invited to join us for SCNA 51st Annual Convention. The SCNA Annual Convention is the largest coin show in the Carolina's. This show has been held on the last weekend in October for 50 years, and is a legacy and testament to the hard work and perseverance of SCNA members, leadership, and participating Dealers for over half a century! This is your convention as much as it is SCNA's, and it is a pleasure to renew acquaintances with you year after year! Note that as many shows have done, in 2023 SCNA has shifted our Convention to start one day earlier, with the show being open to the public Thursday – Saturday.

SCNA's Convention continues to improve by finding new ways to provide a forum for numismatic education and growth! If you've attended a SCNA convention in the recent past you know that we host one of the best Youth Numismatics programs to be found! The SCNA YN Carnival provides youth (and often adults) with fun games to play and neat numismatic prizes to be earned (kids only)!

And this year, as was true for our golden 50th Anniversary convention in 2022, the American Numismatic Association will be conducting two educational seminars. We will be bringing back the popular Fundamentals of Grading seminar given last year, and new for 2023, we will have ANA's Counterfeit Detection training course. Please note: all available seats for last year's ANA seminars were reserved by August, so if you are interested in attending, go to www.SC-NA.org or www.money.org for more information and to sign up for your spot in these great opportunities!

Super Saturday brings more learning opportunities! This year we are honored to present Mr. Tom Wood will present his excellent seminar on the Coins if the Holy Land! In the second Super Saturday session, Dr. Tony Chibbaro will challenge us with inaugural SCNA Currency Quiz! Winners will be awarded prizes in both the Adult and YN categories, so be sure to attend this new "edventure"! And Mr. Will Gragg, with the support of several volunteers, will be bring back the Scouts Coin Collecting Merit Badge workshop. Come on Friday to peruse the bourse floor, and spend Saturday enjoying the special seminars brought to you by SCNA!

Dealer Set-up: Wednesday, Oct. 26th (2pm—8pm with drive-in access to the bourse floor.

Public Hours: 10 AM to 6 PM Thurs & Fri.

10 AM to 5 PM Sat.

Early Birds: Wed. 5 PM; Thurs. & Fri.: 8 AM

Our venue at the Greenville Convention Center is amenable to both Dealers and Patrons. There are no stairs to climb or arduous walks from distant parking lots to deal with. Dealers can drive their vehicles right onto the bourse floor for unloading and loadout. Dealer setup is on Wednesday from 2 PM to 8 PM. The Convention is Thursday through Saturday. Security is available until Sunday morning at 9 AM for those dealers who chose not to drive out until Sunday.

Security is paramount, and for your safety we have several uniformed and plain-clothed security officers with full arrest authority watching everything on the bourse floor in addition to numerous security cameras in use. Everyone entering the show is video recorded and required to show legal identification. The SCNA has absolutely no problem aiding in the prosecution of shoplifters.

While currently no Covid or other public health-related restrictions are in place, the SCNA kindly asks each of you to refrain from entering the convention if you have, or suspect you may have, been exposed to anyone with related symptoms in the two weeks prior to our convention.

If you see any problems or areas where we can improve, please let us know at the front desk or contact me directly at Table 149 or on my cellphone.

Your patronage and continued support make this one of the finest shows in the Southeast, and we look forward to continued growth and participation

Many Thanks, and on behalf of the SCNA Board of Governors, we are excited and look forward to seeing you this October!!

The Hettie Anderson Project

A Joint Venture of the South Carolina Numismatic Association, the Midlands Coin Club, and the South Carolina African American Heritage Commission

By Will Gragg

There are big "doings" in the Midlands of South Carolina to honor one of our own, Ms. Hettie Anderson, a Columbia native renowned in the worlds of numismatics and the arts! For those unfamiliar with Ms. Anderson, here is a short synopsis of her life: Born in 1873 in Columbia, South Carolina, Harriette Eugenia Dickerson (later in life known as Hettie Anderson) was a woman of African descent. She was raised in Columbia and lived in the family home on Wayne Street. By 1895 she was living and working in Manhattan, New York known as the Saint-

Gaudens

double

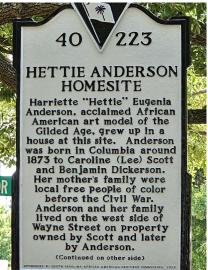

eagle,

City, as a model. She was a favorite of numerous artists and sculptors, including world renowned Augustus Saint-Gaudens, who said Hettie was "certainly the handsomest model I have seen of either sex."

She is Victory, the winged goddess leading General William Tecumseh Sherman in Saint-Gaudens' iconic statue in New York City's Central Park.

She is also the goddess who stands atop what is now the David N. Dinkins Manhattan Municipal Building. Her likeness is on the $20 gold coin

as "The Most Beautiful Coin in the World". Ms. Anderson passed away in 1938 and was laid to rest in an unmarked grave in the historic Elmwood Cemetery in Columbia, South Carolina. Over the past year and a half, the South Carolina Numismatic Association, the Midlands Coin Club of Columbia, SC, Ms. Karen Strickland, genealogist and project coordinator, and the South Carolina African American Heritage Commission have been working in concert

Event 1: Dedication of a Historical marker honoring Ms. Anderson

On Tuesday April 25th there was an historical marker unveiling at the corner of Wayne Street and Taylor Street in Columbia, near the location of the home in which she was raised. This marker was paid for by the SC African American Heritage Commission (SCAAHC) along with the SC Department of Archives and History (SCDOA&H). This event was well attended by members of the Midlands Coin Club (MCC), local media, members of the SCDOA&H and SCAAHC, Daniel Rickenmann -Mayor the city of Columbia, Edward McDowell- Mayor pro-tem and Richland County Council Member, Will Gragg, President of MCC, Ms. Karen Strickland, Dr. Edwin Breeden, SC Historical Marker Program Coordinator, and Ms. Charmaine Clowney, JD, President and CEO of Clowney Consulting Group and Chair of the SCAAHC.

Will Gragg brought a ¼ oz. Gold eagle with Hettie's likeness on it for people to see. He also brought one of the SCNA & MCC Hettie Anderson medals that have been custom made to support this project. This medal was presented to Mayor Rickenmann. While supplies last, additional medals will be given away at Event 2, so make your plans to attend the next event on June 29, 2023!

Additional photographs of this event are available at: https://www.willsphotoartistry.com/ Hettie-Anderson-Historical-Marker-Dedication. If you would like to view local media cov-

The featured speakers are Karen Strickland, genealogist & project coordinator, and MCC's Will Gragg. The previously mentioned medals of Ms. Anderson, specially made for SCNA and the MCC, will be handed out at this event, one per person and only while supplies last. Additionally, the MCC has been selling raffle tickets to raise funds to support this project. The winner of the prize – a gold coin – will be drawn at this event!

Event 3: Placement of a Grave Marker

As previously mentioned, Ms. Anderson was laid to rest in an unmarked grave. Extensive research and ground penetrating radar searches have been completed to verify the location of her grave, and planning is underway to install a grave marker in October 2023. More details will be provided as plans are finalized. MCC and SCNA are providing the grave marker for Ms. Anderson.

Event 4: An Exhibit on the Life of Hettie Anderson

Originally planned to be displayed at the SC Department of Archives and History in March of 2023, this exhibit has been rescheduled and relocated.
